I first got to know the place by accident when I was on my way to the gym. It was just down the street from my gym taking about 3 minutes? One day, I needed to have a quick breakfast before I went to the gym because I wouldn't have enough time after workout. So, I visited there by myself and ordered 김치찌개 on the first day. It was a lot more delicious than I expected, so I went to the place almost everyday before I went to the gym for a few weeks. I think I tried almost every menu I can order for one person. 김치찌개, 된장찌개, 닭볶음탕, which is a Korean style chicken stew, and so forth. They all came out with a variety of side dishes and rice and any of them didn't ever let me down.

The reason why I found it so good was because it had a variety of menu. Even though I went there almost everyday, I never ran out of menu to order, and I didn't get bored of the food for quite a long time. Another reason is the food there was like mum's food. I mean, it was not that special or unique like some other restaurants, but the side dishes were like something you would have seen on your breakfast table when you visited your mum. So, I felt even more comfortable with the food. In addition, all the menu were cheaper than other restaurants around. Maybe around 5 dollars? So, it was even better. I should visit there soon again.
