Hello, it's Jason, the manager of the fitness center cafe. Since you own the fitness center, I need your help.

[카페 새로운 신규 메뉴 조리 기기 구입] As you know, we just spent a lot of money buying a new cooking unit for the cafe. Now, in addition to snacks and sandwiches, we've added healthy, hot meals to the menu. We thought that would be popular with fitness club members.

[신규 메뉴 판매 부진] But, unfortunately, very few people are ordering these new menu items. I think it's because most of our members don't even realize that these new menu options are available. However, I am sure they would sell well if people knew how tasty and nutritious the cooked meals are.

[회원들에게 신규 메뉴 구매 장려] Call me back with a plan to encourage our members to buy these new menu items. Again, it's Jason.

PREPARATION TIME

00:00:30

Hi, this is Anita, the director of research at Curtis Labs. I'm calling you, the human resources director, for advice on selecting who will be good mentors for our new employees during their first year at the company.

[신입 직원 교육 필요]

As you know, we have five new technicians starting at the end of March. I'd like each new employee to have an experienced mentor that they can go to with questions or concerns.

This will help them learn quickly and feel comfortable at work.

Now, we need to choose the ones who will do the best job.

[신입 직원 교육 방안 마련 요청]

Please call me back with your plan to pair up mentors with the new employees. Again, it's Anita at extension 501.

PART.5 Propose a Solution (해결책 제안하기)

Question 10 of 11

Hi there, Anita. This is Sorah.

I understand that we have to make plans for training sessions.
Here are my suggestions.

First, I think we should ask senior employees to talk to new employees on social media.
That way, they can communicate more easily.

Next, I think we should hold a workshop.
That way, everyone can share know-how and exchange feedback.

Anyway, these are my suggestions.
I will call you back if I have more ideas.

RESPONSE TIME
